Now is the opportunity to visit the favorite watering place, Cape May, and under specially advantageous circumstances. A monster musical festival is to be given on Saturday, July 21st, and Sunday, July 22nd, in the large new Cape May pavilion.

It promises to be the greatest affair of the kind ever given in this country. Rehearsals of the chorus, which numbers two hundred and fifty selected voices, and the orchestra of one hundred instrumentalists, are now going on at the Philadelphia Institute under the direction of Mr. Charles Schmitz, musical director of the Germania Orchestra. Distinguished soloists, both vocal and instrumental, have been engaged, and a number of great works will be rendered in a very superior manner.

In addition to the great advantages the Cape possesses, with the finest of beaches, splendid drives, grand hotels, good fishing and sailing, and the before-mentioned musical attractions, the "Washington Rifles," of the National Capital (the military organization which took the prize for drilling at the Garfield National Fair), will be encamped at Cape May during the festival and have the Weccaco Band of Philadelphia.

For the benefit of those desiring to witness the festival, excursion tickets have been placed at the low rate of $2.00, and the return portion made good until July 26th, 1883, inclusive.

—The Lambertville Beacon, who recently sent a reporter up to the Lumberville quarries, says of them: "At the quarries we found eighty men, working with a will in getting out the fine quantities of stone which have gained for the place no little reputation. Thirty-five of this force of workmen are employed exclusively in preparing paving blocks—so popular with Philadelphians who appreciate only the best of pavements that can be laid. Payments are made to the employees every two weeks to the amount of $2,500, and daily two hundred tons of stone are shipped to markets that are ever eager to purchase. The stone is taken from its strata-bed by means of derricks operated by steam; it is then conveyed by small cars, on a track laid in the quarries, to a place where the blocks are cut into remarkably true and smooth squares, after which a hoisting apparatus elevates the same to the distance of about seventy-five feet, where cars of two-ton capacity are filled and run rapidly across the river on a suspended wire. In the aerial flight the cars are propelled by steam power, and as they go, and let the cooking be moderate. Fruits, salads and simple, easily cooked cereals are the proper foods for summer. A gas stove is an economy and a comfort. Find the coolest place to sit, go quietly about your work and make as little fuss as may be about it being warm. Let the children have frequent baths, and do not encumber them with heavy clothing. Common sense and an easy mind help over most of life's rough places, with little friction."

—Bristol is well supplied with secret societies. Masons, Odd Fellows, Red Men, Grand Army of the Republic, Sons of Temperance, Knights of Pythias, Knights of Friendship, Knights of the Mystic Chain, and Junior Order United American Mechanics have organizations here and they are all, we believe, in a flourishing condition.

—The session of the Doylestown Presbyterian church has extended an invitation to Rev. Dr. Conn, of St. Paul, Minnesota, to fill the pulpit until the first Sunday in September, at which time Rev. William A. Patton is expected to resume his pastoral services. Mr. Conn has accepted the invitation.

—The bids for building the new hall in Newtown, were opened by the trustees, on Thursday, the 12th inst., and the contract was awarded to G. B. Girton, of Newtown, his bid being the lowest. The price agreed upon was $5,115, the building to be finished by November 1st.

—At the grand rally of the A. M. E. Church, last Sunday over $85 was collected to aid in the payment of the indebtedness of the church. Rev. Joseph H. Morgan, of Woodbury, N. J., a former Bristolian, preached in the evening.

—The Sheldon House, Ocean Grove, has been greatly enlarged, and Welcome E. Sheldon, the proprietor, is now able to comfortably accommodate five hundred guests. His house is the favorite one for persons who visit this famous sea-side resort.

—Matches which sold for $2 a gross before the tax was now sold for 75 cents. They are one of the very few things where the consumer gets the benefit of the abolition of the tax.

—William Mortimer, a one-handed compositor in the office of the Carbon, Pa., Advocate fastens his stick diagonally across the "H" box, and sets, corrects and distributes 8,000, ems of solid minion each day.

—Jesse H. Knight, late deputy Prothonotary, of Doylestown, has accepted a clerkship on the steamer Republic, now making daily trips between Philadelphia and Cape May.

—A Jersey coast hotel advertises that Mr. Langtry applied for admission, but was gently, but firmly refused. That hotel hunters after notoriety as much as the famous Jersey Lily does.

—"It used to be," writes a farmer to the GAZETTE, "that a husband of wheat would pay for a day's work in the harvest field, now it takes two barrels or more."

—There is not much excuse for able-bodied men begging from door to door when they can easily obtain work in the harvest field at good wages.

A charming way to flavor custards is to beat fruit jelly with the whites of the eggs; red raspberry jelly and quince jelly are especially nice for this.

A handsome tidy is made of linen seine, with the ends fringed, or with drawn work at each end, or it may have this work and the fringe at the bottom only. Then with black etching silk work some pretty figures in the centre. A vine-like border is a great addition.

A lovely cushion for a gift or to adorn your own parlor is made by embroidering a spray of old fashioned pinks on a ground of pale blue. Around the edge of the cushion put a puff of pale pink satin. Where the puff is joined to the satin sew a good sized pink silk cord. The cushion when completed should be about half a yard long, but not quite so wide.

Whortleberry cake without eggs is economical as well as very nice. To one quart of flour allow one cup of sugar, one pint of berries, a little salt and three teaspoonsful of baking powder; use sweet milk to wet them up with. The berries should be washed and drained in a colander before putting them in the dough. Roll out and bake as you do biscuit; or you may bake in a narrow but deep tin, and serve in slices. This is relished when warm or cold.

Salmon, either fresh or canned, may be made a delicious dish; if fresh, boil the fish in salted water until it is tender, then put a layer of bread or cracker crumbs in the bottom of a pudding dish, then a layer of fish; season with pepper and salt; fill the dish with alternate layers of fish and crumbs; wet the bread crumbs with milk, or if that is too rich to suit your taste, use hot water. Bake for a long hour and have the top well browned. This is a dish especially designed for supper.

One reason why corn bread is so often unsuccessful is that the batter is made too thick; it should be thinner than for Johnny-cake, as the flour helps to thicken it. Then one ought not to rely too implicitly on receipts; some kinds of flour and meal thicken more than others, so it is well to observe carefully the first time you use flour or meal from a new sack.

On account of this difference many cooks prefer to purchase flour by the barrel, even for a very small family.

A very agreeable dish for dinner is made by cutting up some lamb in pieces the size you would serve on each plate at the table; put them in a saucepan with a large lump of butter, and cook until both sides are brown; then pour over hot water enough to cover the meat; let this cook slowly for an hour, then remove the meat from the stew pan; make a rich gravy, adding to the water in the pan an onion sliced thin, plenty of pepper and salt, any herb you like, or in place of the onion, and before putting in the flour to thicken the gravy, put in a quart of green peas, and cook them for from fifteen to twenty minutes; skim them out, thicken the gravy, and serve meat and peas and gravy all in one deep platter.

Here is an excellent receipt for Bavarian cream: Beat one pint of cream to a stiff froth. While doing this boil one pint of milk with a part of a vanilla bean in it, and half a cup of sugar should be added in time to have it dissolved thoroughly and yet not boil its sweetness away. Remove the vanilla bean when you take the milk from the fire; then add half a box of gelatine, that is dissolved in a little cold water; add the well beaten whites of four eggs, and let this all stand until it is cold; then stir in the whipped cream gradually. Set it away in the refrigerator until you wish to serve it. This, with fresh fruit and some small cakes in a basket, is very dainty to pass with after dinner coffee; and, by the way, the correspondent who asks for a suggestion for a wedding gift may put her doubt at rest by choosing a pretty set of after dinner coffee cups. These may be found in such a variety of styles that almost any taste may be gratified.

From the Doylestown Democrat.

A LETTER FROM OUR BAKESAKE.

A STORY WITH TWO SIDES TO IT.

HULMEVILLE, July 11th, 1883.

Editor of Doylestown Democrat.—In your local columns of yesterday's issue you had an item, copied from the Bucks County Gazette, stating that I had assaulted Isaac Morris, of Newportville, knocking him down and otherwise injuring him; that I was arrested in Bristol and taken before Squire Bailey and held at $600 bail, said in the "cooler" over night, and that bail was furnished next morning. So far as the Gazette goes it is correct, but it was not aware of the provocation I was subjected to, and under which I knocked Morris down. I desire to state it, and other facts, in your column. If Bucks, or any other, county in this, or any other, State can find a man who is closer allied to the quadruped "hog," I would willingly give a ten dollar bill to see him. But to come down to the provocation which caused me to knock Morris down. Said Morris has repeatedly insulted me in his place of business in Newportville, and he seems to take delight in insulting me when my friend of mine is in his bar-room, and on the day in question he grossly insulted me before a friend who had gone into Morris' bar-room, which insult so enraged me, that I promptly knocked him down, as I would any other hog that offered me a like insult. Regarding the "cooler" in Bristol, in which I passed the night, I desire to say a few words to express my opinion of it. Many farmers in this county would blush to have such a place for their hog pen, for a dirtier or filthier place can hardly be conceived, in which to put a human being, than that "cooler" in Bristol. You append a footnote to the Gazette's article saying that your "namesake" must have himself. I reply that it is the first time I have ever been locked up in any State house, or place of confinement, in the county from one end to the other, and would not have been that day only that the provocation was too great to let pass by, and I think even you, Mr. Editor, whom I was named after, would have flogged the hog had you received the insult that I did. This is my side of the story, Mr. Editor, and I sincerely hope every paper in the county, Gazette and others, will copy it verbatim et literatim from your columns, so that all may read both sides of the story. Very respectfully, your namesake,

W. W. H. D. ROSE.
